As the value of refined planings for commercial use is about 850 per ton; the working of this mine would prove quite profitable. The feature of Mormenism that is particularly objectionable now is its union of church and state. This union is repugnant to the constitution, to the sentiments of American citizenship, and will family yield to the peaceful opposition expresses it is agreement, and not in taunt. The Tribune has long been looked upon as the exponent of the Liberal doctrine. It has done great work, and to its efforts is largely due the present condition, demanding as it does, but little work of the same kind. The Tribune refuses to see what has been accomplished. It clings to a deepworn rut. Progressive in all else, in this it refuses to progress. It gives to the outside world the impression that bitter war is being waged, that the problem is as complex as ever, that no reform has been accomplished. Solid through trains running on the outside world the impression that bitter war is being waged, that the problem is as complex as ever, that no reform has been made. The natural result is that Londoners never direct to a place by street and number; it is "on" such a place, or "off" such a square, or "in" such a place, or "down" such a vay, and so on. Exasperated Americans declare that all this is maintained to compel the wayfarer to hire a cab, and it certainly does have that effect.
